Should you parent or consider adoption?
It's your choice.

If you choose to adopt you have the right to choose the family who will love your child while providing them with a happy and healthy home.

You can choose the amount of future contact and how much information about you that your child will be given.

These options help to ensure that your child will be placed in the best home possible, with a loving family who will cherish him or her for life.

When the time comes, your child will know that you loved them enough to make sure they had the very start for their story.

We Provide:

- A place where you can talk through your questions and get the answers you need to make a decision that you know in your heart is the right one.
- 24/7 personal, confidential assistance because we care about you & your baby.
- Trained counselors and a community of women who have been in your shoes and would love to help you through these tough decisions.
- Full access to profiles of approved adoptive families.
- Financial assistance with living expenses, housing and medical coverage.
- Fully paid legal expenses and attorney fees to complete the adoption process and protect your rights.
- Post-adoption updates and counseling.
- The assurance of knowing that our adoptive families have completed a thorough home screening process including background checks, financial assessment, physical and mental health examinations and careful interviews.
- No obligation even if you later decide to parent.

The choices you make today write your story and the story of your child. Let us help you find the way to write your happiest possible ending.
